Truck Jackknifes, Damages Highway 61 Bridge

HAYTI -- After a truck jackknifed and damaged the south approach of a highway 61 bridge six miles north of Hayti, state highway department personnel rushed work on repairs yesterday.

The work was designed to permit restoration of two lane traffic Tuesday.

While repairs were being made traffic was reduced to one lane with flagmen on each side of the bridge permitting only a few vehicles at a time to move through each way.

The bridge was struck Friday night by a tractor - trailer rig.

The truck, loaded with printed advertising circulars for Sears, Roebuck & Co., was enroute to Washington, D.C.

The advertising pieces were dumped on the highway and into a drainage ditch spanned by the bridge.

This bridge will be replaced by a new one as part of the Interstate 55 route under construction in the lower Bootheel north of Hayti. Construction work on other bridges at this point is underway.

Annuls School Request

NEW MADRID -- A petition filed on behalf of the Sikeston R-6 school board requesting it be permitted to intervene in the suit challenging the annexation of the Morehouse C-12 school district to the R-6 district was overruled today in circuit court by Judge William L. Ragland.

The motion was overruled because it was not in the proper form. Charles D. Matthews, attorney for the Sikeston School board is expected to file an amended motion later this week. The motion to intervene was filed March 21.

Plaintiff in the suit is E. M. Clark, a Morehouse grocer. Defendants are William Dillion, C-12 school board president, and Paul Sherrard, C-13 board secretary.

Clark's petition charges that there is a question about the validity of the annexation procedure and the jurisdiction of the C-12 school board to call an annexation election.

Judge William L. Ragland issued a temporary injunction March 8 restraining the C-12 school board from turning over C-12 money and property to the Sikeston R-6 district. The judge will rule April 23 on whether to make the injunction permanent.

On Feb. 20 residents of the C-12 district voted to annex their district to the Sikeston district. The election carried by eight votes, 395-387.

The R-6 motion to intervene requests that the court admit the R-6 board as a party to the suit since the R-6 district would be directly affected by an action taken by the court.

A 90-year old Bragg City man died Monday as the result of a traffic accident Saturday and a Poplar Bluff woman was killed when her car left highway 60, and overturned a half mile west of Van Buren, last night, the state patrol reported.

Charles Spicer, 90, Bragg City, died Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti, as the result of a collision Saturday afternoon, on highway 84 in Hayti.

He was driving a 1955 Ford pickup truck, when he pulled in front of a 1963 Mack tractor trailer, driven by Fred Huey, 61, Lake Alfred, Fla. The vehicles collided. Huey suffered chest injuries and was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial hospital.

Spicer's grandson, Larry Wayne Spicer, seven, received cuts on his scalp and internal injuries, and is in the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital.

The Calhoun car was reported to have struck the Robbins truck and continued traveling.

Calhoun received slight injuries and is in the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Nixon Formula Revealed

BOSTON (AP) — The Christian Science Monitor says former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, if elected president, will seek immediately to arrange a summit meeting with the Russians on the Vietnam war.

The assertion, in a Washington dispatch from Godfrey Sperling Jr., the Monitor's staff correspondent in the capital, was attributed to "sources informed on Nixon planning."

The dispatch said Nixon "does not intend to escalate the United States military commitment in Vietnam," and instead "he will seek to find ways to the negotiating table where he reportedly intends to impose a tough-bargaining climate."

"He plans," Sperling said, "to arrange for a hard-bargaining summit session with none of the amenities that surrounded the Glassboro (N.J.) get-together of President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

"He feels the Russians respect toughness and are more likely to respond meaningfully in a session in which the United States president makes specific proposals— and then holds to them. He would confine personal goodwill gestures to bare essentials.

"In his speeches, Mr. Nixon has spoken of using 'United States diplomatic, economic, and political leverage' to bring the Soviet Union to 'the side of peace instead of war.'

"By this he means, at least in part, that he would be ready to expand East-West trade and thus make available to the Russians— in an offer at a summit meeting— all sorts of consumer goods that the Russians badly need, particularly such things as computers.

"In return, Mr. Nixon would ask for a cessation, or at least, a cutback in the Soviet supply of arms to North Vietnam. This arms supply, he feels, is the essential element in Hanoi's capacity to carry on the war."

Matthews Students Rally Behind Teacher

MATTHEWS -- The Matthews school board's unanimous decision last night failed to renew the teaching contract of Marshall Isabell, a history and social science teacher in high school, brought a protest from students. Isabell has taught here 14 years.

Students were reported to have gathered on the lawn in front of the school in defense of the teacher.

Markus Koch, president of the school board, said that the board did not change an earlier decision, and the case was closed.

Members of the student council and their parents were present at the board meeting in behalf of Isabell, to inquire why the contract was not renewed.

A unanimous decision was made by Gene Barnes, G. H. Jones, Robert Green, Ted Kelley, Harold Burch, and Koch.

Koch refused to disclose the reason.

The Matthews R-5 district has an enrollment of 780 pupils, with about 50 teachers. About 200 are enrolled in high school.

The board failed to renew the contracts of two other teachers, Harold Smith, band director, and Frank Rinehart, junior high health and science teacher.

Farm Groups Split On Bargaining Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm groups showed at an agricultural conference Monday they are divided on legislation to broaden farmer power to bargain for better prices.

The Johnson administration sought farm expressions on bargaining in a day-long conference to which it had invited officials from more than 150 farm and rural development organizations.

The conference did not, however, bring sharp criticisms of the administration's present farm policies, as a similar meeting did a year ago.

Most of those speaking said there is need for government programs designed to stabilize farm production and prices. Several endorsed recent recommendations of President Johnson that Congress extend portions of farm programs expiring either at the end of this year or at the end of next year.

But there were no expressions of views from the American Farm Bureau Federation, a major critic of government participation in agriculture. Representatives of the organization attended the conference, but kept silent.

The Farm Bureau is supporting legislation now pending to eliminate some of the control in farm payment programs.

Strong support for the administration came from leaders of the National Farmers Union, the National Grange, and the Missouri Famers Association as well as from several commodity organizations.

These organizations gave general support for a bargaining bill introduced recently by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn. This bill would set up a farm bargaining board similar to the Labor Relations Board which supervises labor bargaining.

C. W. McMillan, executive vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, said his organization believes it can attain satisfactory prices through a voluntary self-discipline program of production restraints.

But advocates of a stronger farm bargaining legislation argued there could be no effectve bargnin without legal authority to control production of crops and products which would be subject to price bargaining with processors.

PERRYVILLE, Mo. (AP) -- Officials of Perryville meet today to decide on a course of action following a $100,000 judgment against the city in favor of a local farmer.

Farmer Frederick A. Bergman was awarded the judgment in his suit contending that over an eight-year period 1,200 to 1,400 of his hogs died of drinking water from a stream on his land. Bergman contended the water was polluted by the city's sewage disposal plant.

Judge Roy W. McGhee said he would take no immediate action on a related petition by Bergman that the city be stopped from using the plant. The judge noted the city had been altering the plant and that this would be a factor in any decision.

Trial was held in Greenville, Mo., on a change of venue motion.

Faulty Approach Blamed for Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The probable cause of the crash-landing of a plane near Sikeston Mo., Feb. 15, 1967, was pilot failure to see and avoid trees, the National Transportation Safety Board said Monday.

The pilot, Charles England, 34, of East Prairie, Mo., was killed. The board said his safety belt was not fastened, and he made a poorly planned approach.

The plane, a Cessna 182, in descent struck branches of a large tree.

England was killed when his plane crashed into a plowed wheat field one mile north of the airport. Earlier he had radioed the airport that his plane was running low on gas.

The pilot was returning from Chicago. There were high winds in the area but he had received clearance for the flight to Sikeston at Champaign, Ill.

England had more than 1,000 hours of flying time and held an instrument rating as a pilot.

Barr Says Nation Can't Afford Both Guns, Butter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Treasury official has told Congress the nation can't afford both guns and butter— to wage war in Vietnam while pressing ahead with domestic programs.

Undersecretary Joseph W. Barr's assessment before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee came Monday as President Johnson was telling a labor group: "We will do what must be done— we will do it both at home and we will do it wherever our brave men are called upon to stand."

Barr contended: "We are a great and powerful country and we can do a lot." But, he added, only "if we are willing to get down to the subsistence level like the Russians or someone else" can both war and domestic needs be fully met.

"I'll either get fired or impeached before I get out— and either one is not too bad, Barr told the Senate panel after declaring senators had an obligation to "vote for fiscal responsibility."

He said the administration anticipates a "back to back" deficit of $20 billion for the current fiscal year and the one beginning July 1 if Johnson's proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge isn't enacted.

Following Barr's appraisal of the financial problems posed by the war and domestic needs, Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, said, "It takes the butter out of it when we reduce our standard of living." Barr agreed.

He said if the surtax is enacted, the current fiscal year's deficit will be $2 billion smaller than the $20 billion he forecast, while the tax hike combined with spending cuts could keep the fiscal 1969 deficit down to $8 billion.

Johnson told the AFL-CIO Building Trades Department legislative conference he will seek to build "a better America in a climate of law and order" while meeting U.S. commitments in Vietnam.

He also took issue with political opponents of the President who he said label the Vietnam conflict "Johnson's war." It is no more Johnson's than it was the war of former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower or John F. Kennedy, said Meany.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., told the Senate the war will go on for another year as he argued for enactment of the surtax.

Smathers said "even if some dove, for lack of a better word, gets elected" president he won't be in office until January.

"The war won't even end until about a year from today, even if he's a miracle worker, which I doubt," Smathers said.

Area Planning Virtues Related

Avoiding duplication of effort and attaining greater efficiency were cited as virtues of regional planning at a meeting of the Rotary club last night.

Pat Lea, chairman, described the functions of the Bootheel regional planning commission, which serves 55 towns and six counties.

The commission awaits federal funds for operations but Lea said that it planned to employ a staff of a director at $15,000 a year, a community development specialist and a research analyst.

The commission permits joint application for federal funds for water and sewer projects, airport improvements, public housing, recreation, conservation, transportation, education, hospital and community center projects.

It serves Dunklin, Pemiscot, Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, and New Madrid counties.

The club voted to support Frank H. Gee, St. Joseph, for membership on the nominating committee for director of Rotary International. He was introduced by Paul Hill.

The club has received a certificate acknowledging $70 contributed by it to construction of a school building in Sierra Leono, Africa.

Charles Green led the singing and was accompanied by Kay Hawkins on the piano.

Criteria Adopted For School Reorganization

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Criteria for reorganizing school districts were adopted Monday by the Missouri School District Reorganization Commission.

The chairman, State Rep. James I. Spainhower, D-Marshall, said the guidelines would be used by a professional staff of consultants to draw up a master plan.

They should cross county lines whenever necessary.

Urban and suburban districts should have 10,000 to 30,000 pupils with a minimum of 5,000.

Each district should have enough taxable wealth to support a reasonable part of the education cost.

Abrams Coming to Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, top deputy to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, has arrived here from Vietnam without announcement for "high level consultations," Pentagon sources said today.

Barr Says Nation Can't Afford Both Guns, Butter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Treasury official has told Congress the nation can't afford both guns and butter— to wage war in Vietnam while pressing ahead with domestic programs.

Undersecretary Joseph W. Barr's assessment before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee came Monday as President Johnson was telling a labor group: "We will do what must be done— we will do it both at home and we will do it wherever our brave men are called upon to stand."

Barr contended: "We are a great and powerful country and we can do a lot." But, he added, only "if we are willing to get down to the subsistence level like the Russians or someone else" can both war and domestic needs be fully met.

"I'll either get fired or impeached before I get out— and either one is not too bad, Barr told the Senate panel after declaring senators had an obligation to "vote for fiscal responsibility."

He said the administration anticipates a "back to back" deficit of $20 billion for the current fiscal year and the one beginning July 1 if Johnson's proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge isn't enacted.

Following Barr's appraisal of the financial problems posed by the war and domestic needs, Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, said, "It takes the butter out of it when we reduce our standard of living." Barr agreed.

He said if the surtax is enacted, the current fiscal year's deficit will be $2 billion smaller than the $20 billion he forecast, while the tax hike combined with spending cuts could keep the fiscal 1969 deficit down to $8 billion.

Johnson told the AFL-CIO Building Trades Department legislative conference he will seek to build "a better America in a climate of law and order" while meeting U.S. commitments in Vietnam.

He also took issue with political opponents of the President who he said label the Vietnam conflict "Johnson's war." It is no more Johnson's than it was the war of former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower or John F. Kennedy, said Meany.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., told the Senate the war will go on for another year as he argued for enactment of the surtax.

Smathers said "even if some dove, for lack of a better word, gets elected" president he won't be in office until January.

"The war won't even end until about a year from today, even if he's a miracle worker, which I doubt," Smathers said.

Farmer Wins $100,000 Suit Vs. Perryville

PERRYVILLE, Mo. (AP) -- Officials of Perryville meet today to decide on a course of action following a $100,000 judgment against the city in favor of a local farmer.

Judge Roy W. McGhee said he would take no immediate action on a related petition by Bergman that the city be stopped from using the plant. The judge noted the city had been altering the plant and that th's would be a factor in any decision.

Faulty Approach Blamed for Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The probable cause of the crash-landing of a plane near Sikeston Mo., Feb. 15, 1967, was pilot failure to see and avoid trees, the National Transportation Safety Board said Monday.

The pilot, Charles England, 34, of East Prairie, Mo., was killed. The board said his safety belt was not fastened, and he made a poorly planned approach.

The plane, a Cessna 182, in descent struck branches of a large tree.

England was killed when his plane crashed into a plowed wheat field one mile north of the airport. Earlier he had radioed the airport that his plane was running low on gas.

The pilot was returning from Chicago. There were high winds in the area but he had received clearance for the flight to Sikeston at Champaign, Ill.

England had more than 1,000 hours of flying time and held an instrument rating as a pilot.

Area Planning Virtues Related

Avoiding duplication of effort and attaining greater efficiency were cited as virtues of regional planning at a meeting of the Rotary club last night.

Pat Lea, chairman, described the functions of the Bootheel regional planning commission, which serves 55 towns and six counties.

The commission awaits federal funds for operations but Lea said that it planned to employ a staff of a director at $15,000 a year, a community development specialist and a research analyst.

The commission permits joint application for federal funds for water and sewer projects, airport improvements, public housing, recreation, conservation, transportation, education, hospital and community center projects.

It serves Dunklin, Pemiscot, Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, and New Madrid counties.

The club voted to support Frank H. Gee, St. Joseph, for membership on the nominating committee for director of Rotary International. He was introduced by Paul Hill.

The club has received a certificate acknowledging $70 contributed by it to construction of a school building in Sierra Leone, Africa.

Charles Green led the singing and was accompanied by Kay Hawkins on the piano.

Independent merchants in a new suburban community recently banded together to ask a large chain department to move into their midst as a competitor.

The move was made with the knowledge that local trade activity is self-escalating. Rather than being a threat to existing enterprises, the big store provided a core for the shopping center.

Full-scale newspaper advertising of the department store had a beneficial secondary effect on every shop in the local community. It caused people to stay at home.

The store which creates new business in a community is never the sole benefactor of its own advertising and promotion. Women may be one-stop shoppers, but they rarely are one-store shoppers.

The woman who travels to a metropolitan center to look at a dress which has been advertised in a regional publication may buy everything from groceries to furniture while on the trip.

A similar process of shopping takes place in the local community when the advertising of local firms keeps shoppers at home.

Every retailer knows that consumers lose time and money by traveling distances to buy. This truth is not self-evident to many consumers.

The consumer buys in terms of self-interest from information which is available. And, when local merchants fail to provide information which will cause consumers to remain at home, business inevitably moves to better publicized centers.

Now take the second Earl of Chesterfield, who was a fast cat with the diction, but was cautious enough, even at Valentine, to leave an escape hatch open when he approached Lady Russell in 1661. He wrote:

"Madam: The dullness of this last cold season doth afford nothing that is new to divert you; only here is a report that I fain would know the truth of, which is, that I am extremely in love with you. Pray let me know if it be true or no, since I am certain that nothing but yourself can rightly inform me; for if you intend to use me favorably, and do think I am in love with you, I most certainly am so; but if you intend to receive me coldly, and do not believe that I am in love, I also am sure that I am not; therefore let me entreat you to put me out of a doubt which makes the greatest concern of,

Dear Madam, your most faithful obedient servant,

Chesterfield."

A stolen vehicle, when found, must, by law, be returned to its rightful owner. If you buy a car which is later found to be one which had been stolen, you are just out -- your money and the car.

If you think you might someday purchase a used car, this is definitely a problem to consider. More than 520,000 cars were stolen in the United States last year, which figures out to about one auto theft each minute of every day.

So how do you protect yourself from purchasing a "hot" car? Here are some tips:

Be sure to check the reputation of the dealer from whom you intend to buy a car. Cast a doubtful eye at "special, low-price" bargains on used car lots run by fly-by-night dealers. Your only real protection is to deal with reliable people. It's the difference between buying a diamond on the street corner or at Tiffany's.

Check the vent glass on both sides of the car for evidence of tampering, and if there has been any damage, shy away from the deal.

Be cautious -- go slow -- when closing the deal. If you're in doubt, check the car's engine and vehicle identification number with the police.

If it is not possible to check the car's identity or the dealer's reputation -- say on a weekend -- you may protect yourself with a postdated check that will give you time to investigate during the next week. Be suspicious of any dealer who tries to "hustle" you or who seems far too anxious to sell you a certain car on the spot. Also suspect the dealer who wants to cash your check in a hurry.

Note the license plate numbers as a possible indication that the car was stolen. The plates can be verified through police inquiry. For cars with out-of-State plates, request the seller of the car to show a title for it when iit is from a State requiring titles.

Be sure to read the certificate of title, certificate of ownership, registration form, and other papers involved in the transfer of a car for obvious errors. But, beyond checking these papers for what should obviously be there -- such as the signature of the secretary of state on the registration form -- place very little reliance on these papers. All of these can be counterfeited, and thieves know how to do it so the papers look completely genuine.

If the car has only one license plate from a States that requires two or if the driver seems unfamiliar with his "own" automobile, don't buy it until you've called the FBI, Auto Theft Bureau, or your local police.

A phone call, before buying, can be a very wise investment.

Now when we were a boy a girl's legs attracted the eyes of most all ages of men. In those days a girl, or for that matter, all females, were supposed to keep their legs completely covered. Today they are exposed by all ages. We are not able to say that males still like to look as much as they did at the beginning of the century, but we suppose they do. And did you see the cover girl on last week's issue of Newsweek? This is not a sex magazine by the longest stretch of imagination, but we do not remember having seen a girl posed as that one. We're nearly 74 and we looked at it more than once.

TAKE YOUR MEDICINE,
MR. PRESIDENT

President Johnson's reckless politics have produced a dangerous fiscal mess.

What is alarming is that having pursued irresponsible monetary policies which brought on the gold crisis and threatens devaluation of the dollar, Mr. Johnson doesn't appear to have the courage to take the strong measures called for.

The President instead is behaving like a patient who will do anything but take the medicine the doctor prescribes.

There is common agreement among monetary experts that to meet this crisis three basic steps must be taken to restore United States solvency.

They are:

Balance the federal budget.

Stop the chronic imbalance in international payments.

Halt inflation.

President Johnson fought all attempts to balance the national budget. He recently submitted a budget calling for $186 billion in expenditures for fiscal 1969, which would be at least $8 billion in the red, the ninth straight deficit.

The President has declined to take the necessary steps to check the deficit in international payments that in fiscal 1967 shot up to $3.5 billion.

This added to the more than $30 billion in foreign dollar claims against the United States gold reserve which has fallen from $22.0 billion just 10 years ago to only about $11.4 billion today.

Mr. Johnson has backed away from firm action to check inflation that now is racing ahead at 4 per cent annually.

As the dollar crisis deepens, Mr. Johnson and Congress have toyed with the problem.

The President and his economic advisers have pushed or supported these moves: Restricting foreign investment, a travel tax, removing the gold backing of the dollar to free all our gold reserves to satisfy foreign speculators, raising the prime bank lending rate a half per cent, and working with other countries in the 7-nation gold pool to withstand the heavy gold buying challenge.

These steps, however, are only palliatives. They just buy more time.

They do little to restore international confidence in the dollar. Only basic monetary reforms by the President and Congress can restore faith in the dollar.

The President should immediately move to:

Cut the federal budget by a minimum of $8 billion.

Bring home most of the more than 200,000 United States troops in Europe.

Drastically reduce foreign aid that continues to run at more than $5 billion annually and puts billions more dollars in foreign hands.

Stop inflationary fiscal policies.

In 1967 the Federal Reserve Board, once regarded as synonymous with conservatism, approved the increase in the nation's money supply of 7 per cent. This kind of inflation will have to be stopped.

An income tax surcharge may prove necessary.

To those who would oppose "taking the medicine," we can only point out that it will be far easier to swallow than to undergo the economic upheaval which would surely follow devaluation of the dollar.

Time for effective action grows short.

President Johnson must now move decisively or it may soon be too late. Panic gold buying, if not stopped, could generate irresistable pressure that would raise the price of gold. The dollar would be devalued and no amount of counteraction could stop it.

'DEBT SET'

Sen. Wallace Bennett of Utah is credited with the new tag for the Johnson's administration "Great Society" which he now refers to as the "debt set." He points out that we have had a $40 billion increase in the national debt since 1964 -- a period of time when federal spending has run wild.

It could be after the 1968 elections that the people will get a little relief from taxes and paying interest on increasing debts, if we vote right.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol made 111,582 arrests in 1967. This was an increase of 13 per cent over the number of arrests made in the previous year. More than 95 per cent of these arrests were classified as "traffic" or motor vehicle and associated arrests. The remaining arrests were in the criminal misdemeanor and felony category.

The Patrol made 105,977 motor vehicle arrests last year of which 69,338 were for hazardous moving traffic violations. This was an increase of 19 per cent over the number of these arrests made in 1966. Among the offenses included in this category are those relating to careless and imprudent driving and driving while intoxicated.

Of the persons arrested for hazardous moving violations, 60,125 had not been drinking. The greatest number of these arrests was for exceeding the daytime speed limit.

Those persons arrested for moving violations involving drinking numbered 9,213 last year. This was an increase of nearly ten per cent over the number of arrests, classified as motor vehicle misdemeanors, totaled 4,241 during 1967. There were also 30 driving while intoxicated felony arrests made by the Patrol. Under Missouri statutues, the first two convictions for driving while intoxicated are misdemeanors, but the third and subsequent offenses are felonies. The remaining 4,942 persons arrested for moving violations where drinking was involved were not considered legally intoxicated under Missouri law.

In addition to the arrests made by the Patrol last year, the troopers issued 276,456 warnings for minor infractions of the law.

DO-IT YOURSELF COUNTRY

Much of what surrounds us seems too big and too massive to be affected by what we do. Government is huge, business organization are huge and million-member labor organization are commonplace. Too many of us shrug our shoulders helplessly and figure that there is little we can do on our own to influence the course of events. And right there we are absolutely wrong. Just as a great building is held together by individual steel members solidly bonded to cement, so is society's progress and constructive accomplishment made possible by the efforts of the individual citizen.

Mr. C. W. Cook, chairman of one of the nation's major food processing companies expressed the philosophy that many more of us are going to have to make our own decisions if a free society under representative government is to endure. His belief is, "When you personally involve yourself and accept your individual responsibility, you've found the best way to discover that the only true way to get is to give of oneself. I'm afraid too many people have the idea that their individual efforts can't count for much. ..But it's not just the top man who contributes to success. What's really made our system great is our ability to bring great numbers of people into the act, to motivate enthusiasm and participation at many levels."

We should all remember this the next time we have an opportunity to serve in a public service capacity. To keep our freedom, we must keep this a do-it-yourself country.

GETTING THE BREAKS

Don't count on getting the breaks unless you prepare for them, says Waldo Wright, an educator. The chance of the wheel of fate stopping on your number is one in a hundred. The chance of opportunity stopping in front of the man who has prepared to grasp it is one in five. Chance is but an incident in getting the breaks; readiness always outweighs it on the scales of attainment.

Lincoln got the breaks - surely he did. He failed in the first twenty - eight things he undertook in life. Yet he was ready for the great task to reunite our nation. Eli Whitney, Graham Bell, Cyrus McCormick, Thomas Edison, and "Boss" Kettering got the breaks. They did if you include such misfortunes as accidents, physical handicaps, opposition, and loss of fortune.

Bad breaks make tough sailing, but mariners know that the clippers that came through were built of stout oak. Misfortune sends some weaklings to the bunk, but a bad break makes a thoroughbred out of the man who climbs the rungs of adversity to th dock.

If your hops are long delayed, look inward and consider the pine cone. As a cone, it is squirrel food; as a pine, it is a noble tree, suited for a ship's mast.

NEW YORK (AP) — If man could keep his big mouth shut, half his troubles would disappear.

High schools teach algebra and colleges teach logic, but no institution of formal learning bothers to inform its students when to speak and when to be silent.

Only in the school of hard knocks does a fellow find out that an open mouth is the biggest manufactory of self-woe. Only there does he learn to curb his tongue and refrain from making remarks that can lead only to disaster.

Anyone's happiness quotient in life would double, for example, if he studiously refrained from ever using any of the following expressions:

"If you felt that way about my family, why did you marry me in the first place?"

"Take it or leave it!"

"I hear you had an operation, Madge. Tell me about it."

"You must have had an interesting time on your trip to Europe. I don't suppose you took any color pictures while you were there?"

"Gee, if that's the biggest merit raise I can expect around here, I'd just as soon do without one."

"Hop in. Where are you trying to hitchhike to?"

"So you cooked this all by yourself with your own little wee hands. Well, it tastes like you could have used a few helpers."

"There's one big difference between you and my first wife. She burned the toast on the top, you burn the toast on the bottom."

"The trouble with you suburbanites, Ronald, is that your only real interest in life is in fighting crabgrass. Why don't you just beat it to death with an empty gin bottle?"

"This is the first time I ever played roulette. How much does it cost to bet, and where do I put my money?"

"Go ahead and try. I dare you."

"I can't understand it, George. You never let me play golf with you before, and the very first time I hit the ball I knocked it farther than you did. How do you explain that?"

"I'm leaving the key in the mailbox. Use the place as often as you like while we're gone. Just so you don't throw any wild parties."

"Who are you to put yourself on a pedestal?"

"I feel I haven't been of much help. Is there anything else you can think of that I can do for you?"

"I have to leave the store for a couple of hours to do an errand. Would you mind handling the cash register until I get back?"

One of those sweet, helpless things had just bought a postage stamp. "And must I stick it on myself?" she asked.

"Oh, no, ma'am," said the obliging postal clerk; "it will do more good if you stick it on the evenlope."

If the Congress goes along on restricting foreign travel by American nationals, there will be a substantial impact on the independent business community due to the fact there are thousands of smaller entrepreneurs engaged in the travel agency industry, the research staff of the National Federation of Independent Business believes.

Although cognizant of the balance of trade problem, the researchers believe that perhaps Congress should first investigate the flow of American dollars going overseas in the form of Social Security checks as a greater unbalancing force.

While there is at present apparently no definitive figure on the amount of money being shipped out of the nation in this manner, it is known to be substantial. It is understood this is largely accounted for by natives of other lands working in the United States until qualifying for Social Security benefits, then moving back to their land of nativity.

It is felt doubtful that many of these receipients contributed to the fund in an amount commensurate with their benefits, especially under the newly raised payments for Social Security beneficiaries. This, in affect, is then currently taking taxes from American employees and employers to bolster foreign dollar holdings which become a claim on the U.S. gold supply.

Hearings before the U.S. Supreme Court have indicated that unlike bona fide insurance policies, the United States government is not compelled to continue Social Security payments to anyone and thus presumably could insist that such payments be kept in the domestic economy.

WASHINGTON -- During the days immediately prior to and after governor Rockefeller's withdrawal from the Presidential race, this column was queried by newspapers and weekly magazines as to whether we were preparing a column on Rockefeller's private life.

Specifically, questions were asked regarding a report that Rockefeller had withdrawn from the race because of an impending column on this subject.

The answer is that we had investigated certain reports that Governor Rockefeller had developed a new romance and that his marriage to happy was foundering. We found that, on the rontrary, the Rockefeller second marriage is most harmonious and compatible. There was no truth to the report.

However, the important fact is that these reports had been deliberately circulated by Rockefeller's political enemies. Furthermore, they had been circulated so assiduously that they had won credence in the eastern part of the United States, even including the name of an alleged girl friend.

It was impossible to trace the rumors to their exact origin, but it was ascertained they had been spread in party by supporters of Richard Nixon. It was also ascertained that Nixon has compiled dossiers on men who might challenge him for the Republican nomination.

At the time of the controversy over the two homosexuals on the staff of Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, it became known that Nixon's staff of Gov. Reagan of California, it became known that Nixon's "Reagan File" was in the possession of ex-congressman Pat Hillings, R-Calif., one of Nixon's close associates. Hillings could not leak information from the file, however, without Nixon's personal approval which, in this case, was not given.

We doubt very much whether Governor Rockefeller withdrew from the Presidential race because of these rumors. He has been sensitive about his divorce, and the possibility that it would be drawn into the Presidential race. Never has a divorced man been elected President.

We are certain, however, that the rumor mill is going to play a part in the coming campaign, and we write this to warn that the American public should be prepared for it.

Vice President Nixon, by his own public admission, believes in waging a "rocking, socking" campaign.

One who fully expects to get socked is President Johnson, who believes Nixon is watching for an opportunity to use the soft - on - communism charge against him. Indeed, this fear is one factor influencing the President today regarding his Vietnam policies. He has told intimates that he can't very well retreat from his hard line until Nixon declares where he stands on Vietnam. He believes there is more political danger in being accused of appeasement than of escalation. In short, the President would rather be attacked by the doves than by the hawks.

Meanwhile, the political battle, like the war in Vietnam, will be escalating.

BOBBY'S AUTO PROBLEM

Bobby Kennedy will be on the spot this week as to whether he puts consumers or politics first. He'll also have an interesting conflict between his No. 1 adviser, Ted Sorensen, and Sorensen's no. 1 law client, General Motors.

It happens that Bobby has done an excellent job of putting the heat on the big motor moguls to improve their safety practices. He has been a staunch supporter of Sen. Abe Ribicoff, D-Conn., who pioneered for better automobile safety. Ribicoff is calling the auto manufacturers before his committee on March 29 to probe their increased costs and whether they are justified by increased safety.

Both Ribicoff and Kennedy have been skeptical, and had planned to subject representatives of the four automobile companies to tough cross - examination.

However, this was before Bobby Kennedy got into the Presidential swim. It was also before Ted Sorensen began writing speeches for him. Sorensen happens to be the attorney for General Motors, the no. 1 company scheduled to be put on the griddle in the March 29 hearings.

What the motor moguls are hoping is that Senator Kennedy will take a run-out powder that day. It will be interesting to see whether he puts the public interest or his political interest first.

Independent merchants in a new suburban community recently banded together to ask a large chain department to move into their midst as a competitor.

The move was made with the knowledge that local trade activity is self-escalating. Rather than being a threat to existing enterprises, the big store provided a core for the shopping center.

Full-scale newspaper advertising of the department store had a beneficial secondary effect on every shop in the local community. It caused people to stay at home.

The store which creates new business in a community is never the sole benefactor of its own advertising and promotion. Women may be one-stop shoppers, but they rarely are one-store shoppers.

The woman who travels to a metropolitan center to look at a dress which has been advertised in a regional publication may buy everything from groceries to furniture while on the trip.

A similar process of shopping takes place in the local community when the advertising of local firms keeps shoppers at home.

Every retailer knows that consumers lose time and money by traveling distances to buy. This truth is not self-evident to many consumers.

The consumer buys in terms of self-interest from information which is available. And, when local merchants fail to provide information which will cause consumers to remain at home, business inevitably moves to better publicized centers.

Now take the second Earl of Chesterfield, who was a fast cat with the diction, but was cautious enough, even at Valentine, to leave an escape hatch open when he approached Lady Russell in 1661. He wrote:

"Madam: The dullness of this last cold season doth afford nothing that is new to divert you; only here is a report that I fain would know the truth of, which is, that I am extremely in love with you. Pray let me know if it be true or no, since I am certain that nothing but yourself can rightly inform me; for if you intend to use me favorably, and do think I am in love with you, I most certainly am so; but if you intend to receive me coldly, and do not believe that I am in love, I also am sure that I am not; therefore let me entreat you to put me out of a doubt which makes the greatest concern of,

Dear Madam, your most faithful obedient servant,

A stolen vehicle, when found, must, by law, be returned to its rightful owner. If you buy a car which is later found to be one which had been stolen, you are just out -- your money and the car.

If you think you might someday purchase a used car, this is definitely a problem to consider. More than 520,000 cars were stolen in the United States last year, which figures out to about one auto theft each minute of every day.

So how do you protect yourself from purchasing a "hot" car? Here are some tips:

Be sure to check the reputation of the dealer from whom you intend to buy a car. Cast a doubtful eye at "special, low-price" bargains on used car lots run by fly-by-night dealers. Your only real protection is to deal with reliable people. It's the difference between buying a diamond on the street corner or at Tiffany's.

Check the vent glass on both sides of the car for evidence of tampering, and if there has been any damage, shy away from the deal.

Be cautious -- go slow -- when closing the deal. If you're in doubt, check the car's engine and vehicle identification number with the police.

If it is not possible to check the car's identity or the dealer's reputation -- say on a weekend -- you may protect yourself with a postdated check that will give you time to investigate during the next week. Be suspicious of any dealer who tries to "hustle" you or who seems far too anxious to sell you a certain car on the spot. Also suspect the dealer who wants to cash your check in a hurry.

Note the license plate numbers as a possible indication that the car was stolen. The plates can be verified through police inquiry. For cars with out-of-State plates, request the seller of the car to show a title for it when iit is from a State requiring titles.

Be sure to read the certificate of title, certificate of ownership, registration form, and other papers involved in the transfer of a car for obvious errors. But, beyond checking these papers for what should obviously be there -- such as the signature of the secretary of state on the registration form -- place very little reliance on these papers. All of these can be counterfeited, and thieves know how to do it so the papers look completely genuine.

If the car has only one license plate from a States that requires two or if the driver seems unfamiliar with his "own" automobile, don't buy it until you've called the FBI, Auto Theft Bureau, or your local police.

A phone call, before buying, can be a very wise investment.

Now when we were a boy a girl's legs attracted the eyes of most all ages of men. In those days a girl, or for that matter, all females, were supposed to keep their legs completely covered. Today they are exposed by all ages. We are not able to say that males still like to look as much as they did at the beginning of the century, but we suppose they do. And did you see the cover girl on last week's issue of Newsweek? This is not a sex magazine by the longest stretch of imagination, but we do not remember having seen a girl posed as that one. We're nearly 74 and we looked at it more than once.

TAKE YOUR MEDICINE,
MR. PRESIDENT

President Johnson's reckless politics have produced a dangerous fiscal mess.

What is alarming is that having pursued irresponsible monetary policies which brought on the gold crisis and threatens devaluation of the dollar, Mr. Johnson doesn't appear to have the courage to take the strong measures called for.

The President instead is behaving like a patient who will do anything but take the medicine the doctor prescribes.

There is common agreement among monetary experts that to meet this crisis three basic steps must be taken to restore United States solvency.

They are:

Balance the federal budget.

Stop the chronic imbalance in international payments.

Halt inflation.

President Johnson fought all attempts to balance the national budget. He recently submitted a budget calling for $186 billion in expenditures for fiscal 1969, which would be at least $8 billion in the red, the ninth straight deficit.

The President has declined to take the necessary steps to check the deficit in international payments that in fiscal 1967 shot up to $3.5 billion.

This added to the more than $30 billion in foreign dollar claims against the United States gold reserve which has fallen from $22.0 billion just 10 years ago to only about $11.4 billion today.

Mr. Johnson has backed away from firm action to check inflation that now is racing ahead at 4 per cent annually.

As the dollar crisis deepens, Mr. Johnson and Congress have toyed with the problem.

The President and his economic advisers have pushed or supported these moves: Restricting foreign investment, a travel tax, removing the gold backing of the dollar to free all our gold reserves to satisfy foreign speculators, raising the prime bank lending rate a half per cent, and working with other countries in the 7-nation gold pool to withstand the heavy gold buying challenge.

These steps, however, are only palliatives. They just buy more time.

They do little to restore international confidence in the dollar. Only basic monetary reforms by the President and Congress can restore faith in the dollar.

The President should immediately move to:

Cut the federal budget by a minimum of $8 billion.

Bring home most of the more than 200,000 United States troops in Europe.

Drastically reduce foreign aid that continues to run at more than $5 billion annually and puts billions more dollars in foreign hands.

Stop inflationary fiscal policies.

In 1967 the Federal Reserve Board, once regarded as synonymous with conservatism, approved the increase in the nation's money supply of 7 per cent. This kind of inflation will have to be stopped.

An income tax surcharge may prove necessary.

To those who would oppose "taking the medicine," we can only point out that it will be far easier to swallow than to undergo the economic upheaval which would surely follow devaluation of the dollar.

Time for effective action grows short.

President Johnson must now move decisively or it may soon be too late. Panic gold buying, if not stopped, could generate irresistable pressure that would raise the price of gold. The dollar would be devalued and no amount of counteraction could stop it.

'DEBT SET'

Sen. Wallace Bennett of Utah is credited with the new tag for the Johnson's administration "Great Society" which he now refers to as the "debt set." He points out that we have had a $40 billion increase in the national debt since 1964 -- a period of time when federal spending has run wild.

It could be after the 1968 elections that the people will get a little relief from taxes and paying interest on increasing debts, if we vote right.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol made 111,582 arrests in 1967. This was an increase of 13 per cent over the number of arrests made in the previous year. More than 95 per cent of these arrests were classified as "traffic" or motor vehicle and associated arrests. The remaining arrests were in the criminal misdemeanor and felony category.

The Patrol made 105,977 motor vehicle arrests last year of which 69,338 were for hazardous moving traffic violations. This was an increase of 19 per cent over the number of these arrests made in 1966. Among the offenses included in this category are those relating to careless and imprudent driving and driving while intoxicated.

Of the persons arrested for hazardous moving violations, 60,125 had not been drinking. The greatest number of these arrests was for exceeding the daytime speed limit.

Those persons arrested for moving violations involving drinking numbered 9,213 last year. This was an increase of nearly ten per cent over the number of arrests, classified as motor vehicle misdemeanors, totaled 4,241 during 1967. There were also 30 driving while intoxicated felony arrests made by the Patrol. Under Missouri statutues, the first two convictions for driving while intoxicated are misdemeanors, but the third and subsequent offenses are felonies. The remaining 4,942 persons arrested for moving violations where drinking was involved were not considered legally intoxicated under Missouri law.

In addition to the arrests made by the Patrol last year, the troopers issued 276,456 warnings for minor infractions of the law.

DO-IT YOURSELF COUNTRY

Much of what surrounds us seems too big and too massive to be affected by what we do. Government is huge, business organization are huge and million-member labor organization are commonplace. Too many of us shrug our shoulders helplessly and figure that there is little we can do on our own to influence the course of events. And right there we are absolutely wrong. Just as a great building is held together by individual steel members solidly bonded to cement, so is society's progress and constructive accomplishment made possible by the efforts of the individual citizen.

Mr. C. W. Cook, chairman of one of the nation's major food processing companies expressed the philosophy that many more of us are going to have to make our own decisions if a free society under representative government is to endure. His belief is, "When you personally involve yourself and accept your individual responsibility, you've found the best way to discover that the only true way to get is to give of oneself. I'm afraid too many people have the idea that their individual efforts can't count for much. ..But it's not just the top man who contributes to success. What's really made our system great is our ability to bring great numbers of people into the act, to motivate enthusiasm and participation at many levels."

We should all remember this the next time we have an opportunity to serve in a public service capacity. To keep our freedom, we must keep this a do-it-yourself country.

GETTING THE BREAKS

Don't count on getting the breaks unless you prepare for them, says Waldo Wright, an educator. The chance of the wheel of fate stopping on your number is one in a hundred. The chance of opportunity stopping in front of the man who has prepared to grasp it is one in five. Chance is but an incident in getting the breaks; readiness always outweighs it on the scales of attainment.

Lincoln got the breaks - surely he did. He failed in the first twenty - eight things he undertook in life. Yet he was ready for the great task to reunite our nation. Eli Whitney, Graham Bell, Cyrus McCormick, Thomas Edison, and "Boss" Kettering got the breaks. They did if you include such misfortunes as accidents, physical handicaps, opposition, and loss of fortune.

Bad breaks make tough sailing, but mariners know that the clippers that came through were built of stout oak. Misfortune sends some weaklings to the bunk, but a bad break makes a thoroughbred out of the man who climbs the rungs of adversity to th dock.

If your hops are long delayed, look inward and consider the pine cone. As a cone, it is squirrel food; as a pine, it is a noble tree, suited for a ship's mast.

NEW YORK (AP) — If man could keep his big mouth shut, half his troubles would disappear.

High schools teach algebra and colleges teach logic, but no institution of formal learning bothers to inform its students when to speak and when to be silent.

Only in the school of hard knocks does a fellow find out that an open mouth is the biggest manufactory of self-woe. Only there does he learn to curb his tongue and refrain from making remarks that can lead only to disaster.

Anyone's happiness quotient in life would double, for example, if he stuliously refrained from ever using any of the following expressions:

"If you felt that way about my family, why did you marry me in the first place?"

"Take it or leave it!"

"I hear you had an operation, Madge. Tell me about it."

"You must have had an interesting time on your trip to Europe. I don't suppose you took any color pictures while you were there?"

"Gee, if that's the biggest merit raise I can expect around here, I'd just as soon do without one."

"Hop in. Where are you trying to hitchhike to?"

"So you cooked this all by yourself with your own little wee hands. Well, it tastes like you could have used a few helpers."

"There's one big difference between you and my first wife. She burned the toast on the top, you burn the toast on the bottom."

"The trouble with you suburbanites, Ronald, is that your only real interest in life is in fighting crabgrass. Why don't you just beat it to death with an empty gin bottle?"

"This is the first time I ever played roulette. How much does it cost to bet, and where do I put my money?"

"Go ahead and try. I dare you."

"I can't understand it, George. You never let me play golf with you before, and the very first time I hit the ball I knocked it farther than you did. How do you explain that?"

"I'm leaving the key in the mailbox. Use the place as often as you like while we're gone. Just so you don't throw any wild parties."

"Who are you to put yourself on a pedestal?"

"I feel I haven't been of much help. Is there anything else you can think of that I can do for you?"

"I have to leave the store for a couple of hours to do an errand. Would you mind handling the cash register until I get back?"

One of those sweet, helpless things had just bought a postage stamp. "And must I stick it on myself?" she asked.

"Oh, no, ma'am," said the obliging postal clerk; "it will do more good if you stick it on the evenlope."

If the Congress goes along on restricting foreign travel by American nationals, there will be a substantial impact on the independent business community due to the fact there are thousands of smaller entrepreneurs engaged in the travel agency industry, the research staff of the National Federation of Independent Business believes.

Although cognizant of the balance of trade problem, the researchers believe that perhaps Congress should first investigate the flow of American dollars going overseas in the form of Social Security checks as a greater unbalancing force.

While there is at present apparently no definitive figure on the amount of money being shipped out of the nation in this manner, it is known to be substantial. It is understood this is largely accounted for by natives of other lands working in the United States until qualifying for Social Security benefits, then moving back to their land of nativity.

It is felt doubtful that many of these receipients contributed to the fund in an amount commensurate with their benefits, especially under the newly raised payments for Social Security beneficiaries. This, in affect, is then currently taking taxes from American employees and employers to bolster foreign dollar holdings which become a claim on the U.S. gold supply.

Hearings before the U.S. Supreme Court have indicated that unlike bona fide insurance policies, the United States government is not compelled to continue Social Security payments to anyone and thus presumably could insist that such payments be kept in the domestic economy.

The concert is sponsored by the Delta Community Concert Association. This is the final in a series of four concerts this season.

The French pianist, was born in Oran, Algeria, where he began his musical studies at the age of five. In 1947 he won the Prize of Honor at the Oran Conservatory.

In 1948, Sevilla left Algeria and moved to Paris where he studied at the National Conservatory with Marcel Ciampi and Madame Bascourret de Gueraldi. He also studied for some years with Madame Suzanne Roche. In 1952 he was accorded an overwhelming tribute: the Jury at the Conservatory awarded him both the first prize and the prize of honor, a double award which no one had merited in the previous ten years, and which no one has merited since. He was then sent under the Conservatory's sponsorship on a twenty concert tour of Germany.

In the years, 1954-1958 Sevilla continued his studies and toured in France, Austria, Luxembourg, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Spain, Morocco, Algeria and Egypt. He served 28 months with the military and, in 1959, burst upon the musical scene again as the jury's unanimous choice for the Geneva Prize. Of his success in this major international competition, the composer Alberto Ginastera remarked, "the 1959 Geneva Prize, his first international success, is only the beginning, and I am convinced that before long his name will be known the world over." Sevilla also counts among his awards the Schmilling Prize.

After his discharge from military service, Sevilla made his North American debut in Canada and the United States in 1962, and in Mexico in 1964.

By MARY MEYER

We would like to apologize for omitting a very important group of persons in last week's column regarding the tournament -- our dedicated scorekeepers, without whom there could be no tournament. So, to all those who kept scores throughout the tournament, our thanks.

The Tuesday Morning Housewives League is nearing the end of its season and this past week Jean Lee rolled high individual game and series of 223-600. The Sparettes had the high game with 863 and the Alley Cats had the high three-game series with 2,-381.

The bowling, teamwise, was a little onesided-five of the teams shut out the other five:

Alley Cats 4-Rollettes 0; Sparettes 4-Pin Ups 0: Ten Pins 4-Hecklers 0; Whiffys 4-Road Runners 0 and Town and Country 4-Strikers 0.

With the Newcomers, Evelyn Agnew had high individual game of 183 and Norma Johnson, the high three-game series of 452. The Go-Getters collected both high team game and series of 801 - 2,298. The Go - Getters, a team composed mainly of new bowlers, have finally climed out of the cellar, and are tied for fifth place with the Peanuts -- good team.

Games won and lost:

Hi-Los 3- Percolators 1; Sparettes 3-Witches 1 and Go-Getters 4- Peanuts 0.

With the Delta Imperialettes, Norma Baker rolled the high individual and series with 219-579. Ziegenhorn collected both high team game and series with scores of 841-2,396.

Splits converted:

Linda James, 5-7; Mary Ellen Johnson, 3-10; June Gosnell, 3-7; Suzanne Ashley, 2-7 twice and 4-5-7; Jean Wilson, 4-5; Margaret Manley, 5-7 and Nelda Hodge, 5-7 and 2-7.

In team action:

Ferrells 2 1/2-L & A Laundry 1 1/2; Crown 3-Progressive 1; Barkett's 3-Police 1; Ziegler's 4-Reiss 0; A & B Pastries 4-Campbell's 0 (a forfeit); Ziegenhorn 3-Potlatch 1.

Helen Masters led the Royal Keglers with high individual game and series of 221-566. General Oil Company rolled high team game of 1,040 and Holyfield Flying Service had the high three-game series with 3,005.

Alma York picked up the 5-6 split; Rose Bryant, 3-10; Virginia Holsinger, 6-7; Irene Rodgers 5-10 and Marge Street, 6-7-10.

In team action:

Wade's Body Shop 3-Busch Bavarian 1; Hope's Auto Electric 4-Lewis Furniture Company 0; H. Herb Stephens 4-First National Bank; Holyfield 4-Liberty 0; General Oil 2 1/2-Bank of Sikeston 1 1/2; C. D. Alcorn 2-Malone and Hyde 2.

With the Friday Bowlettes, Patty Crabb had high individual game of 201 and Vera Gaston the high individual series with 493. Nowell Construction Company had high team game of 780 and Ziegenhorn Insurance had high team series of 2,190.

This "Two-In-One" MEDICATED MAKE-UP combines the best liquid make-up with healing anti-bacterial ingredients. Then puff on Medicated compressed powder to keep that smooth, matte finish right through the day. Next time you wonder if your make-up is doing your skin any good, try Bonne Bell's Medicated Make-up. El Birdos Solid Favorite

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The pitcher-rich St. Louis Cards, with power and speed to spare, have picked up where they left off last October and rate solid favorites to repeat in the National League.

Red Schoendienst came South with a set ball club, his bench bolstered by wise offseason trades. His main problem has been how to cut down his fine pitching staff.

The Cards became the first club in Florida to win 10 exhibition games and probably will become the first to hit the 100 mark when they start playing for keeps.

"We know we have our work cut out for us," said Schoendienst. "That 10½ game lead didn't fool us. You won't find any complacency here. We want to prove we can do it again."

Observers who have watched Lou Brock, Curt Flood, Orlando Cepeda, Roger Maris, Mike Shannon, Tim McCarver, Dal Maxvill and Bob Tolan stinging the ball are wondering what club can provide real competition for El Birdos.

After the first 11 games the club was batting at a .301 clip and every regular was at .300 or better.

Julian Javier, the second baseman, was a holdout for a time and got a late start in the exhibition schedule due to a slight injury. The first time the complete World Series line-up was in action was March 22. They proceeded to shut out Pittsburgh, regarded as a top challenger.

Cepeda has been hitting home runs. Brock has been slugging and stealing bases. Bob Gibson, the ace of the staff, allowed only one run in his first 11 innings.

Due to the patchwork schedule of early season, Schoendienst probably will use only four starters in the early games. They are Gibson, Nelson Briles, Steve Carlton and Dick Hughes.

Ray Washburn and Larry Jasmabe is another to be considered when the final cutdown to 25 men comes on opening day.

The infield is set and solid with Cepeda on first, Javier on second, Maxvill at short and Shannon at third.

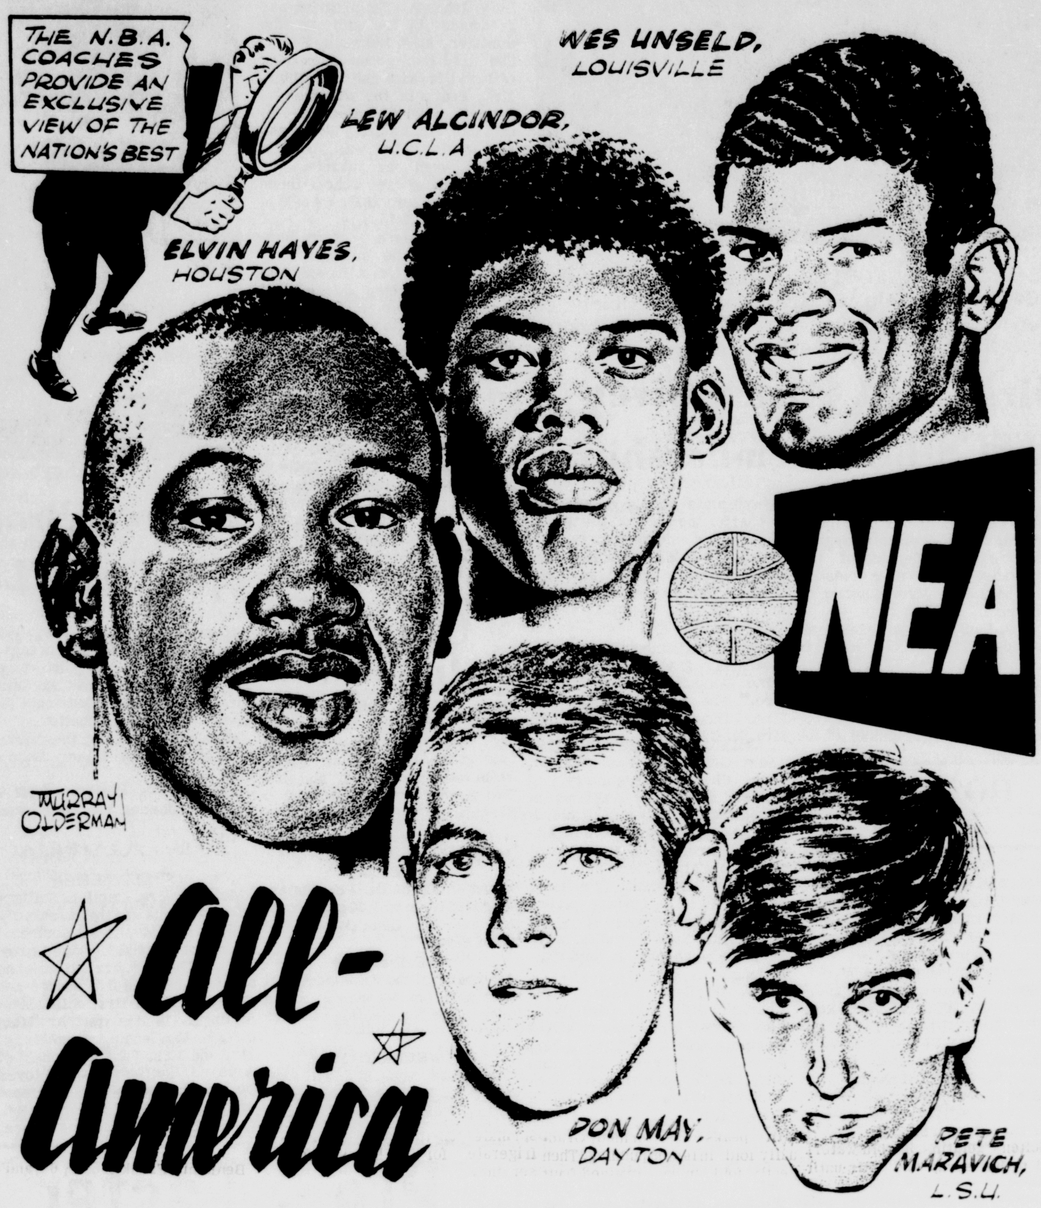
The Cards have picked up infielder Dick Schofield from the Los Angeles Dodgers and still have Phil Gagliano and Ed Spiezio for either infield or outfield.

In the outfield the front line is solid— Brock in left, Flood in center and Maris in right. Tolan, heir apparent to Maris, has been hitting around .400 and Dick Simpson, acquired from Cincinnati with catcher John Edwards in the deal for Alex Johnson, looks like a fine spare.

Tim McCarver, perhaps the No. 1 catcher in the league, will get help from Edwards, a former All-Star whose puzzling batting slump ended his days in Cincinnati. Dave Ricketts probably also will be kept as the third catcher.

ler are ready to take a turn. Mike Torrez and Hal Gilson, two graduates from the Tulsa farm have looked the best of the new boys. Wayne Granger, another Tulsa product, also pitched well.

If there is any problem in the Cards' rosy future it could be the bullpen. Joe Hoerner has been hit freely. Ron Willis must prove he can repeat his rookie year's performance. Jack La-



Hayes Will Not Compete

HOUSTON (AP)— Elvin Hayes says he will not compete for a spot on the Olympic basketball team because he needs money and he needs to work on his game to "make a pro team."

He said it was his own decision and that he had not been contacted by anyone who had proposed that Negro athletes boycott the Olympics.

"It's not color or anything like that," said Hayes, college basketball's player of the year. "It's my own decision. I only hope the public can understand my problem."

Meanwhile, two professional teams have announced they will try to sign the Houston Cougar star who is college basketball's second highest scorer in history.

The San Diego Rockets won the coin toss Monday for the first draft choice in the National Basketball Association and immediately announced they would try to sign the 6-8 star.

The Houston Mavericks of the American Basketball League also say they have the negotiation rights for Hayes although the ABA draft will not be until April 8.

Hayes says he favors the NBA and for the first time has set a definite price tag on himself. He said he will ask for $300,000 over three years.

"All my life I have wanted to play against the best," he said. "In order to play against the best I want to go into the NBA."

Hayes made his decision not to participate in the Olympic trials upon returning Sunday from Los Angeles where the top ranked Cougars had their 31-0 record spoiled in losses to UCLA and Ohio State in the NCAA semifinals and third place games.

"I need the money that a pro contract would bring me and I need it pretty fast," he said. "I have a wife and a child to support and basketball is the way I can support them best."

Seven Lettermen Bolster Track Hopes

By ED FELKER

Track at Sikeston high school has been underway two weeks. All indications show that this should be another fine season with a number of school records in in jeopardy.

Norman Lambert will be at the helm. He will have seven returning lettermen to mold the rest of his team around. They are Bruce Killian, John Childress, Jim Carney, Dennis Snelling, Jim Hailey, Arthur Jackson, and Riley Gross. All seven of these boys were key men on last year's team.

Snelling and Jackson last year as sophomores usually placed first and second in the 100 and the 220 and free from injury should do so again. They should both push the school record in the 100 of 9.9 and possibly the 220 record.

Another record which seems likely to fall is the mile relay. Last year's team broke the school record and there will be three of the four boys that made up the relay back-Childress, Hailey, and Killian.

Only one boy is missing from the conferences best 880 relay last year. Jackson, Gross, and Snelling are back. There should not be a quartet in the area and maybe the state which can top this combination.

Coach Lambert said like last year there will be few teams in the area that will be able to hold a candle to the Bulldogs in the running events. Field events are another story. He feels that if the Dogs could come up with a few good boys in the field events that the team could hold its own against anyone. He plans to consentrate on this aspect.

David Newberry is expected to be Sikeston's strongest boy in the pole vault and one of the better ones in the area. As a sophomore last year he made everyone sit up and take notice and there should be no reason for him not doing well this spring.

Rainy weather has held up track practice but Coach Lambert expects to have his cindermen ready for the first big meet at Charleston next Tuesday.

Coach Lambert believes in hard, consitent training and manages to get the most out of the boys he is coaching. There is a lot of potential in the boys out for track this year so it looks as if Sikeston will have an exciting track season.

Orioles Raising Hopes; Cards Take Reds In 10

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's only baseball spring training, but Baltimore pitchers are bringing back 1966 memories, erasing 1967 nightmares and raising 1968 hopes.

Oriole hurlers extended their shutout string to 23 innings Monday before the Chicago White Sox scored once, not enough as Baltimore beat the Sox 2-1 for its fourth straight victory.

Tom Phoebus, following a pair of two-hit shutouts, had Chicago blanked for four innings before Ken Berry homered for a 1-1 tie. But Phoebus, rookie Roger Nelson and Brad Dillman stopped the Sox the rest of the way, and two errors by Chicago pitcher Gary Peters on a sacrifice bunt set up Mark Belanger's winning sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Phoebus, Stu Miller, who pitched one shutout inning Friday, and Eddie Watt are the only pitchers involved in the whitewash string that remain from the 1966 staff that pitched Baltimore to the pennant and world series championship.

During last year's disappointing sixth place finish when sore arms and injuries hampered the hurlers, the Orioles came up with many new faces. They include Nelson, Dillman, Jim Hardin, Gene Brabender, John O'Donoghue and Pete Richert, the other weekend shutout pitchers.

At the same time Detroit's pennant hopes suffered a blow when slugging Willie Horton bruised a shoulder tendon in a 5-1 loss to Atlanta as Tito Francona homered and later scored the winning run.

Horton, injured while making a tumbling catch in left field, is expected to be out a week as injuries that kept him out of about 50 games last year continued to plague him.

California lost pitcher Jim McGlothlin in the second inning with a muscle spasm in his back, but Chuck Hinton's bat powered the Angels to a 9-3 victory over San Francisco. Hinton drove in six runs with three hits.

Houston had its eight-game winning streak snapped when Philadelphia broke a 2-2 tie with eight runs in the last three innings for an 8-2 triumph as Grant Jackson and rookie Larry Colton combined on a three-hitter.

Rich Nye, the Chicago Cubs' pitching discovery in their 1967 surprise finish, held Cleveland to six hits and no walks in eight innings in a 7-2 victory.

Joe Rudi bounced a hit over shortstop Gene Alley's head in the seventh inning and Oakland beat Pittsburgh 4-3.

Bob Bailey used more power to pull Los Angeles past the New York Yankees 4-1 as he slugged a triple and a homer.

St. Louis and Minnesota won a pair of extra inning games. The Cardinals nudged Cincinnati 7-6 on Floyd Wicker's winning hit in the 10th after the Cardinals tied in the ninth on Orlando Cepeda's two-run homer.

Bob Allison's fourth hit drove in the winning run in the 12th for the Twins and beat Boston 4-3.

Pistons, Lakers Win In Playoffs

Dave DeBusschere's big play — which almost backfired— ignited a Detroit last-ditch drive Monday that gave the Pistons an even break in their National Basketball Association playoff with the Boston Celtics.

DeBusschere, who scored 23 points in the 126-116 Pistons' victory, made his move with 2:46 to play and Detroit leading 114-112.

He stole an errant Boston pass and drove in all alone toward the basket and dunked the ball— and missed.

Teammate Eddie Miles, though, racing down court, snared the rebound and dropped it in for a 116-112 Piston edge. Detroit outscored the Celtics 8-4 the rest of the way to tie the best-of-7 Eastern Division series at one game apiece.

In Western Division playoff action in Los Angeles, the Lakers took a 2-0 lead with an 111-106 victory over Chicago.

Dallas topped Houston 115-97 and Pittsburgh blasted Indiana 146-127 in American Basketball Association playoff contests.

Dave Bing topped Detroit with 24 points and five other Pistons were in double figures. Sam Jones led the Celtics with 18 points and three Boston players, including player-Coach Bill Russell fouled out. The others were Tom Sanders and Bailey Howell.

The third game of the series will be played in Boston Wednesday night.

The Lakers, who led all the way until a furious Bull surge tied the score at 100-all with 3:33 to play, got clutch baskets from Jerry West and Archie Clark to gain the triumph.

West, who finished with a game-high 35 points, got a three-point play to put the Lakers up 109-104 and ice their second straight victory in the best-of-7 series.

A free throw by Elgin Baylor and a Clark layup broke the 100-100 tie and Clark added two free throws with 11 seconds left.

Chicago's Flynn Robinson with 32 points and Keith Erickson with 18 led the late Bull rally. Baylor finished with 26 points and 16 rebounds and Clark had 15 points.

Saturday, the Indians ran away from Evansville University in track 132-12 and yesterday rolled over Northwestern in baseball 9-4.

Orioles Raising Hopes; Cards Take Reds In 10

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's only baseball spring training, but Baltimore pitchers are bringing back 1966 memories, erasing 1967 nightmares and raising 1968 hopes.

Oriole hurlers extended their shutout string to 23 innings Monday before the Chicago White Sox scored once, not enough as Baltimore beat the Sox 2-1 for its fourth straight victory.

Tom Phoebus, following a pair of two-hit shutouts, had Chicago blanked for four innings before Ken Berry homered for a 1-1 tie. But Phoebus, rookie Roger Nelson and Brad Dillman stopped the Sox the rest of the way, and two errors by Chicago pitcher Gary Peters on a sacrifice bunt set up Mark Belanger's winning sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Phoebus, Stu Miller, who pitched one shutout inning Friday, and Eddie Watt are the only pitchers involved in the whitewash string that remain from the 1966 staff that pitched Baltimore to the pennant and world series championship.

During last year's disappointing sixth place finish when sore arms and injuries hampered the hurlers, the Orioles came up with many new faces. They include Nelson, Dillman, Jim Hardin, Gene Brabender, John O'Donoghue and Pete Richert, the other weekend shutout pitchers.

At the same time Detroit's pennant hopes suffered a blow when slugging Willie Horton bruised a shoulder tendon in a 5-1 loss to Atlanta as Tito Francona homered and later scored the winning run.

Horton, injured while making a tumbling catch in left field, is expected to be out a week as injuries that kept him out of about 50 games last year continued to plague him.

California lost pitcher Jim McGlothlin in the second inning with a muscle spasm in his back, but Chuck Hinton's bat powered the Angels to a 9-3 victory over San Francisco. Hinton drove in six runs with three hits.

Houston had its eight-game winning streak snapped when Philadelphia broke a 2-2 tie with eight runs in the last three innings for an 8-2 triumph as Grant Jackson and rookie Larry Colton combined on a three-hitter.

Rich Nye, the Chicago Cubs' pitching discovery in their 1967 surprise finish, held Cleveland to six hits and no walks in eight innings in a 7-2 victory.

Joe Rudi bounced a hit over shortstop Gene Alley's head in the seventh inning and Oakland beat Pittsburgh 4-3.

Bob Bailey used more power to pull Los Angeles past the New York Yankees 4-1 as he slugged a triple and a homer.

St. Louis and Minnesota won a pair of extra inning games. The Cardinals nudged Cincinnati 7-6 on Floyd Wicker's winning hit in the 10th after the Cardinals tied in the ninth on Orlando Cepeda's two-run homer.

Bob Allison's fourth hit drove in the winning run in the 12th for the Twins and beat Boston 4-3.

Pistons, Lakers Win In Playoffs

Dave DeBusschere's big play —which almost backfired— ignited a Detroit last-ditch drive Monday that gave the Pistons an even break in their National Basketball Association playoff with the Boston Celtics.

DeBusschere, who scored 23 points in the 126-116 Pistons' victory, made his move with 2:46 to play and Detroit leading 114-112.

He stole an errant Boston pass and drove in all alone toward the basket and dunked the ball— and missed.

Teammate Eddie Miles, though, racing down court, snared the rebound and dropped it in for a 116-112 Piston edge. Detroit outscored the Celtics 8-4 the rest of the way to tie the best-of-7 Eastern Division series at one game apiece.

In Western Division playoff action in Los Angeles, the Lakers took a 2-0 lead with an 111-106 victory over Chicago.

Dallas topped Houston 115-97 and Pittsburgh blasted Indiana 146-127 in American Basketball Association playoff contests.

Dave Bing topped Detroit with 24 points and five other Pistons were in double figures. Sam Jones led the Celtics with 18 points and three Boston players, including player-Coach Bill Russell fouled out. The others were Tom Sanders and Bailey Howell.

The third game of the series will be played in Boston Wednesday night.

The Lakers, who led all the way until a furious Bull surge tied the score at 100-all with 3:33 to play, got clutch baskets from Jerry West and Archie Clark to gain the triumph.

West, who finished with a game-high 35 points, got a three-point play to put the Lakers up 109-104 and ice their second straight victory in the best-of-7 series.

A free throw by Elgin Baylor and a Clark layup broke the 100-100 tie and Clark added two free throws with 11 seconds left.

Chicago's Flynn Robinson with 32 points and Keith Erickson with 18 led the late Bull rally. Baylor finished with 26 points and 16 rebounds and Clark had 15 points.

Newsboy System Succeeds Despite Keen Competition

KANSAS CITY - The Mid-West Circulation Managers' association meeting was told that the newsboy system cannot only succeed in today's fast-paced world, but can be a healthy ingredient in the circulation growth of a newspaper.

Edward L. Bennett, circulation manager of the Bergen Evening Record, Hackensack, N. J., said that for 17 years he has worked with the newsboy system with gratifying results, but admitted that there are problems.

"We have more competition for a boy's time," he said. "Schools having more organized programs for young men in the newspaperboy age group; communities have more organized programs for the young men in the age group; regional schools have become popular and boys have to leave home early and return home too late to have a newspaper route; supermarkets and similar business organizations compete with us for this work force; families travel much more than they used to and they don't want to be tied down to a newspaper route seven days a week if they decide to take a trip; families are more affluent and the need for a boy to earn his own money is not as great, and the welfare state attitude has destroyed some of the good old American independence. What do I mean?

" . . . Today many young people are perfectly happy watching television during their idle hours and take a fat allowance from dad and mother, in many low income areas the boys see the welfare checks come in without working for them and they learn this way of life."

Bennett said conditions have changed and added that newsboy programs are as strong today as ever before.

"I have always believed that newspaper routes are good for boys," he said. "I have always believed that the Little Merchant plan is one of the best ways to distribute newspapers. It has met the test of time. Don't let a few skeptics or negative thinkers lead you into thinking otherwise. You must apply good management principles to the Little Merchant plan if you want it to operate properly, if you neglect it you will have trouble."

Glenn Greene, Sikeston Standard circulation manager, attended.

Newsboy System Succeeds Despite Keen Competition

KANSAS CITY - The Mid-West Circulation Managers' association meeting was told that the newsboy system cannot only succeed in today's fast-paced world, but can be a healthy ingredient in the circulation growth of a newspaper.

Edward L. Bennett, circulation manager of the Bergen Evening Record, Hackensack, N. J., said that for 17 years he has worked with the newsboy system with gratifying results, but admitted that there are problems.

"We have more competition for a boy's time," he said. "Schools having more organized programs for young men in the newspaperboy age group; communities have more organized programs for the young men in the age group; regional schools have become popular and boys have to leave home early and return home too late to have a newspaper route; supermarkets and similar business organizations compete with us for this work force; families travel much more than they used to and they don't want to be tied down to a newspaper route seven days a week if they decide to take a trip; families are more affluent and the need for a boy to earn his own money is not as great, and the welfare state attitude has destroyed some of the good old American independence. What do I mean?

". . . Today many young people are perfectly happy watching television during their idle hours and take a fat allowance from dad and mother, in many low income areas the boys see the welfare checks come in without working for them and they learn this way of life."

Bennett said conditions have changed and added that newsboy programs are as strong today as ever before.

"I have always believed that newspaper routes are good for boys," he said. "I have always believed that the Little Merchant plan is one of the best ways to distribute newspapers. It has met the test of time. Don't let a few skeptics or negative thinkers lead you into thinking otherwise. You must apply good management principles to the Little Merchant plan if you want it to operate properly, if you neglect it you will have trouble."

Glenn Greene, Sikeston Standard circulation manager, attended.

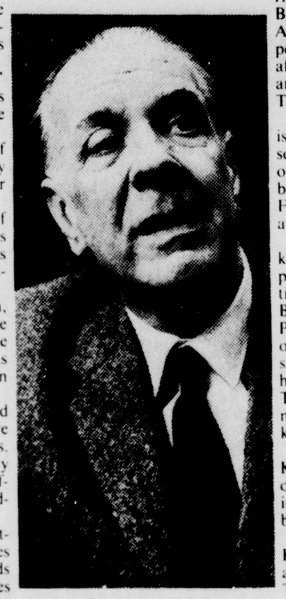
Visiting Prof Praises Americans

By THOMAS E. ENGEL
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Argentine poet and essayist Jorge Luis Borges, now a visiting professor at Harvard, leads the double life of a man involved in the world of people and enchanted with the world of books.

The 68-year-old poet holds the Charles Eliot Norton Visiting Chair of Poetry at Harvard, a chair held at different times by Robert Frost, T.S. Eliot and Igor Stravinsky.



ARGENTINE writer Jorge Luis Borges

Borges, who recently became blind, as did his father and grandfather in their later years, loves the life of the university.

"The university is the finest place," he says, "because the university is where the world of people and the world of books intersect."

Borges is especially fond of American students. "They are very keen on their subjects, not just their diploma," he says.

A professor at the University of Buenos Aires, Borges says he is happy if two or three of his students there out of a class of 30 are interested in their studies.

The author, who is of Spanish, English and remotely of Portuguese ancestry, is conversant with the literatures of all three languages as well as with French, German, Latin and Greek literatures.

"I learned to speak Spanish and English before I knew they were Spanish and English," he recalls. "I had to speak one way to my English grandmother and a different way to my Spanish grandmother."

In discussing the poets and writers of a dozen different countries and eras, Borges moves his hands gracefully and then opens his eyes widely, evidencing his excitement and delight with one part or another of the world of words.

Of all literatures, however, he singles out English as being "above all the rest.

"The incredible variety and richness of English is the result of its combination of sources in the Germanic and Romantic language groups. For example," he says, "a poem that demands the words 'Holy Ghost' could be ruined by 'Holy Spirit.'"

Borges, who spent one semester at the University of Texas in 1961, says he has had a long-standing love affair with the United States. "But," he says with some resignation, "the United States puzzles me. As a South American, I wonder why the United States refuses to be an empire. It is a commercial empire already, but I suppose there's no glamor in that."

But what most puzzles him is the Americans' insistence on thinking of South America as Spanish. "Of course the land was colonized by the Spanish, and most of the countries speak Spanish. But how would the United States like it if everyone thought of it as English?"

This year Borges is teaching Argentine literature to Harvard students. He usually teaches American and English literature in Buenos Aires. His favorite modern American poet is Robert Frost, perhaps because of Borges' special affinity for the New England literary tradition of Emerson and Thoreau.

Borges says "Frost's greatness is that he's very strange without setting out to be. Poe and Pound, on the other hand, did their very best, or worst, to be strange. But Frost is the one who really ends up as strange."

Borges feels that poets should keep political opinions out of their poetry, and put them "in a watertight case." Citing his own case, Borges says, "I was always against Peron, and I made it clear, and I opposed Hitler when he had many supporters in my country. Also I have been against Communism. There has never been any doubt in my mind about that. But I always kept my opinions out of my work."

He recalls with a smile that Kipling, England's literary apostle of empire, said late in his life, "It is given to a writer to write fables, but not to tell the moral."

"I like that, especially because Kipling said it," says Borges. "As a poet, one must forget opinions. They shift. Poetry comes from deeper within."

'GONE WITH THE WIND' WITH JAPANESE LYRICS

NEW YORK (AP)—The Japanese musical version of "Gone With the Wind" is to have words and music by Broadway veteran Harold Rome.

The commission from Toho Ltd., the Tokyo show business complex, calls for delivery of the material by April 1969.

Stamps In The News

The Chungshan Building, recently completed memorial to Dr. Sun Yat-sen, is featured on the first 1968 stamp by the Republic of China. The new stamp, first in a series, also commemorates the 101st anniversary of the birth of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

Part I of this series consists of three stamps with denominations of $.50, $1 AND $2.50 (Taiwan currency). All stamps have the same design but differ in color. The $.50 is magenta, $1 carmine and the $2.50 blue.

Also issued by Republic of China were two stamps commemorating the 17th annual conference of the Pacific Area Travel Association. The PATA was organized to develop and facilitate travel to the Pacific area. The stamps picture two scenic attractions. One shows the Taroko Gorge. The other, oddly enough, illustrates the Chungshan Building but gives a different view from the Sun Yat-sen stamp.

Included in the list are supplements for the stamps of Canada, Europe, Israel, J. F. Kennedy, Switzerland, United Nations, Vatican City, "All American," British America, Asia, Oceania, China, France, Japan, Russia and San Marino.

Argentina has issued a new 20 pesos stamp as an addition to its Argentine Painters Series. This stamp honors Eduardo Sivori (1847-1918) who began serious painting at the age of 36. He exhibited in Paris and on his return to Buenos Aires confined himself to work on the Pampas and local costumes. The Museum of Fine Arts in Buenos Aires is named after him. The 20 pesos adhesive shows a portrait of the artist's wife taken from one of his oils.

Hungary's Winter Olympic set consists of eight diamond-shape stamps and a souvenir sheet. Depicted are rifle shooting on skis, figure skating, bobsled, downhill skier, female figure skater, speed skater, ski jump and Grenoble Stadium. The souvenir sheet features an ice-hockey goalie plus Hungarian and French flags.

Visiting Prof Praises Americans

By THOMAS E. ENGEL
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Argentine poet and essayist Jorge Luis Borges, now a visiting professor at Harvard, leads the double life of a man involved in the world of people and enchanted with the world of books.

The 68-year-old poet holds the Charles Eliot Norton Visiting Chair of Poetry at Harvard, a chair held at different times by Robert Frost, T.S. Eliot and Igor Stravinsky.

ARGENTINE writer Jorge Luis Borges

Borges, who recently became blind, as did his father and grandfather in their later years, loves the life of the university.

"The university is the finest place," he says, "because the university is where the world of people and the world of books intersect."

Borges is especially fond of American students. "They are very keen on their subjects, not just their diploma," he says.

A professor at the University of Buenos Aires, Borges says he is happy if two or three of his students there out of a class of 30 are interested in their studies.

The author, who is of Spanish, English and remotely of Portuguese ancestry, is conversant with the literatures of all three languages as well as with French, German, Latin and Greek literatures.

"I learned to speak Spanish and English before I knew they were Spanish and English," he recalls. "I had to speak one way to my English grandmother and a different way to my Spanish grandmother."

In discussing the poets and writers of a dozen different countries and eras, Borges moves his hands gracefully and then opens his eyes widely, evidencing his excitement and delight with one part or another of the world of words.

Of all literatures, however, he singles out English as being "above all the rest.

"The incredible variety and richness of English is the result of its combination of sources in the Germanic and Romantic language groups. For example," he says, "a poem that demands the words 'Holy Ghost' could be ruined by 'Holy Spirit.'"

Borges, who spent one semester at the University of Texas in 1961, says he has had a long-standing love affair with the United States. "But," he says with some resignation, "the United States puzzles me. As a South American, I wonder why the United States refuses to be an empire. It is a commercial empire already, but I suppose there's no glamor in that."

But what most puzzles him is the Americans' insistence on thinking of South America as Spanish. "Of course the land was colonized by the Spanish, and most of the countries speak Spanish. But how would the United States like it if everyone thought of it as English?"

This year Borges is teaching Argentine literature to Harvard students. He usually teaches American and English literature in Buenos Aires. His favorite modern American poet is Robert Frost, perhaps because of Borges' special affinity for the New England literary tradition of Emerson and Thoreau.

Borges says "Frost's greatness is that he's very strange without setting out to be. Poe and Pound, on the other hand, did their very best, or worst, to be strange. But Frost is the one who really ends up as strange."

Borges feels that poets should keep political opinions out of their poetry, and put them "in a watertight case." Citing his own case, Borges says, "I was always against Peron, and I made it clear, and I opposed Hitler when he had many supporters in my country. Also I have been against Communism. There has never been any doubt in my mind about that. But I always kept my opinions out of my work."

He recalls with a smile that Kipling, England's literary apostle of empire, said late in his life, "It is given to a writer to write fables, but not to tell the moral."

"I like that, especially because Kipling said it," says Borges. "As a poet, one must forget opinions. They shift. Poetry comes from deeper within."

'GONE WITH THE WIND' WITH JAPANESE LYRICS

NEW YORK (AP)—The Japanese musical version of "Gone With the Wind" is to have words and music by Broadway veteran Harold Rome.

The commission from Toho Ltd., the Tokyo show business complex, calls for delivery of the material by April 1969.

Stamps In The News

The Chungshan Building, recently completed memorial to Dr. Sun Yat-sen, is featured on the first 1968 stamp by the Republic of China. The new stamp, first in a series, also commemorates the 101st anniversary of the birth of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

Part I of this series consists of three stamps with denominations of $.50, $1 AND $2.50 (Taiwan currency). All stamps have the same design but differ in color. The $.50 is magenta, $1 carmine and the $2.50 blue.

Also issued by Republic of China were two stamps commemorating the 17th annual conference of the Pacific Area Travel Association. The PATA was organized to develop and facilitate travel to the Pacific area. The stamps picture two scenic attractions. One shows the Taroko Gorge. The other, oddly enough, illustrates the Chungshan Building but gives a different view from the Sun Yat-sen stamp.

are allowed for all stamps issued since the previous supplement. Included in the list are supplements for the stamps of Canada, Europe, Israel, J. F. Kennedy, Switzerland, United Nations, Vatican City, "All American," British America, Asia, Oceania, China, France, Japan, Russia and San Marino.

Argentina has issued a new 20 pesos stamp as an addition to its Argentine Painters Series. This stamp honors Eduardo Sivori (1847-1918) who began serious painting at the age of 36. He exhibited in Paris and on his return to Buenos Aires confined himself to work on the Pampas and local costumes. The Museum of Fine Arts in Buenos Aires is named after him. The 20 pesos adhesive shows a portrait of the artist's wife taken from one of his oils.

Hungary's Winter Olympic set consists of eight diamond-shape stamps and a souvenir sheet. Depicted are rifle shooting on skis, figure skating, bobsled, downhill skier, female figure skater, speed skater, ski jump and Grenoble Stadium. The souvenir sheet features an ice-hockey goalie plus Hungarian and French flags.

Ann Landers

Columnist Gets Scrambled In Gigantic Omelet

Dear Ann Landers: If you don't have egg on your face it's not because you don't deserve it. I'll bet you hear plenty from your readers about your prescribed outlet of anger. You advocated trying to break an egg by squeezing it in the palm of the hand.

If the egg is held vertically in in the palm, you scheme is O.K., but if the egg is held sideways -- watch out. Exactly why the egg defends itselt when held vertically, I do not know. It has to do with some structural reason which I've never been able to understand.

One bright note: Anyone who tries Ann Lander's remedy for anger will surely succeed, in that he will stop being mad at the original object and he'll be mad at YOU instead. --- F. S, OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

Dear F. S.: I have already received enough letters on this subject to write a sequel to "The Egg And I." One reader sent me the splattered egg -- in an envelope. A million apologies, folks. The yolk's on me.

Dear Ann Landers: After 10 years of what I thought was a good marriage my wife suddenly became bored and found herself a lover. I remained patient thinking she would get over it, but I was wrong. She wants a divorce. My reward for 10 years of devotion is that she will take my children and use my hard-earned money to pay her lawyer for cutting my throat. While the divorce is going through she and the children will move into an apartment and I must pay for that, too.

Everyone has the impression that it is always the husband who plays around. If this had been the case I would have felt that I got what I deserved, but it just isn't so.

The divorce laws in this country are shamelessly slanted in favor of the wife. It is criminal. Why isn't something done to make these laws more equitable? It is too late to help me but it would help other defenseless husbands whose conniving wives want to give them the works. ---------- PILLORIED

Dear Pilloried: You must have a lawyer. What does he say? It is difficult for me to believe that you are as blameless as your letter suggests. I agree that the divorce laws in many states strongly favor the wife, particularly if there are children, but this is ridiculous.

Dear Ann Landers: I was shocked at the letter from the man who had the nerve to sign himself "Honest Abe." He practically went into orbit because the postman didn't put stamps on his greeting cards and gifts - just left them in the mailboxes. Hasn't that idiot got anything better to complain about? And YOU - are you trying to tell me that when our paper boy and the neighborhood children leave cards in the mailbox they are breaking the law?

People who are considerate and thoughtful should be praised, not threatened. Shame on you. ---- GIRLS OF DEPARTMENT #22

Dears Girls: I'm not trying to tell you anything. All I'm trying to do is give correct advice. I didn't write the law. I am merely informing the public that such a law exists. I agree, it sounds loony, but nevertheless there is indeed a $300 fine for leaving cards and gifts in the mailbox without stamps. There is no fine, however, for ringing the bell and handing the card or gift to the occupant.

How far should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become to hot to handle? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking And Petting -- What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50¢ in coing and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Fingerprint Can Be Signature

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Had Otto had an education, he might have amassed a large fortunate instead of just a tiny one. A graduate of the college of hard knocks, he never even learned to sign his name.

What he did learn was to anticipate trouble. Consequently, to avoid a family battle over his money after he died, he transferred his bank accounts to a favorite nephew just before death.

While Otto thought he was being farsighted, he turned out to be a poor judge of distance. Immediately after his death, the squabble began.

"The transfers were no good," argued several disinherited relatives. "They were never signed by Otto as specifically required by law."

"He didn't sign them," was the nephew's answer, "because he couldn't write. But, he did put his thumb print on the transfers and that was just as good."

The dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you consider the thumb print a singature so as to validate the transfers?

This is how the judged ruled: The judge held that when a person can't write, or is unable to sign his name because of a physical incapacity, he may make a mark as a substitute for his signature. And, concluded the judge, a fingerprint is as good, if not better, than any mark.

THE GOLD CRISIS -- As gold buying on the London market reached record proportions on Thursday, March 14, the Senate, by a margin of 39-37, voted to remove the 25 per cent gold cover. At that time apparently the theory behind this Administration request was that by freeing United States gold from reserve requirements, all the some $11.4 billion of gold bullion currently in the United States Treasury could be used to stem the speculation.

Previously, by the same narrow vote of 39-37, the Senate rejected an amendment that I both spoke for and voted for; which admendment would have prevented the exchange of dollars for our gold by foreign countries during the time their debts to the United States were in arrears.

If the misfortune of a monetary crisis has to occur, it would appear preferable to face it at a time when we have over $11 billion of gold bullion in the Treasury, instead of after our gold has run out. The latter possibility is far more than theory because, alone among the nations of the world, this Government continues to sell gold for $35 an ounce, far under the current market price.

Another problem incident to our having already lost over half of our gold in recent years ($13 billion) is the continuging deficit in our international balance of payments, a situation about which I have been speaking continuously on the Floor of the Senate for many years.

In the first of a series of five Senate statements on the Balance of Payments problem made in 1963, I recommended a number of actions, including a long overdue substantial reduction of our troops in Eugope. This has not occurred however; in fact, no truly effective steps of any kind have been taken in effort to reduce this payments deficit. Since 1963, when I voiced my first warning, our gold supply has decreased many additional billions of dollars.

Over the past weekend, the seven members of the international gold pool met in Washington and agreed to establish a two-price system in gold transactions. Basically, they agreed that (1) the price of gold for government dealings would remain at $35 an ounce (2) the price of gold in the private market would be determined by supply and demand; and (3) the central banks involved will no longer sell gold to private users, or to any central bank which sells gold on the private market.

The central bank of France, as well as the central banks of other countries not party to the agreement, can purchase gold from the U.S. Treasury at the official rate of $35 an ounce, provided there is no evidence of that central bank in question selling gold from its official reserves to private speculators.

The difficulty will be identification of gold in the private market that might have come from central banks; and as yet no "policing" system has been agreed to.

Some policing method would seem vital so as to assure that the $$1.4 billion of United States gold stock, recently made available as the result of the removal of the gold cover, does not end up in the hands of speculators.

Members of the banking and business communities of both the United States and Europe, however, view the actions taken this past weekend as no more than a prelude to the need for more meaningful actions on the part of the United States fiscal and monetary authorities to stem the further outflow of gold and thereby improve the balance of payments.

In this connection, one fact already stands out clearly; namely, the United States, although a strong nation, has limited resources; therefore priorities must be established. As example, there must be decision as to whether or not carrying out programs considered essential in this country and other countries are, or are not, more important than carrying out the present progress in Vietnam.

I do not believe that this economy can handle both; and it is now clear that words alone are no longer respected by our foreign creditors as a substitute for action.

Washington Report

by Symington

THE GOLD CRISIS -- As gold buying on the London market reached record proportions on Thursday, March 14, the Senate, by a margin of 39-37, voted to remove the 25 per cent gold cover. At that time apparently the theory behind this Administration request was that by freeing United States gold from reserve requirements, all the some $11.4 billion of gold bullion currently in the United States Treasury could be used to stem the speculation.

Previously, by the same narrow vote of 39-37, the Senate rejected an amendment that I both spoke for and voted for; which admendment would have prevented the exchange of dollars for our gold by foreign countries during the time their debts to the United States were in arrears.

If the misfortune of a monetary crisis has to occur, it would appear preferable to face it at a time when we have over $11 billion of gold bullion in the Treasury, instead of after our gold has run out. The latter possibility is far more than theory because, alone among the nations of the world, this Government continues to sell gold for $35 an ounce, far under the current market price.

Another problem incident to our having already lost over half of our gold in recent years ($13 billion) is the continuging deficit in our international balance of payments, a situation about which I have been speaking continuously on the Floor of the Senate for many years.

In the first of a series of five Senate statements on the Balance of Payments problem made in 1963, I recommended a number of actions, including a long overdue substantial reduction of our troops in Eugope. This has not occurred however; in fact, no truly effective steps of any kind have been taken in effort to reduce this payments deficit. Since 1963, when I voiced my first warning, our gold supply has decreased many additional billions of dollars.

Over the past weekend, the seven members of the international gold pool met in Washington and agreed to establish a two-price system in gold transactions. Basically, they agreed that (1) the price of gold for government dealings would remain at $35 an ounce (2) the price of gold in the private market would be determined by supply and demand; and (3) the central banks involved will no longer sell gold to private users, or to any central bank which sells gold on the private market.

The central bank of France, as well as the central banks of other countries not party to the agreement, can purchase gold from the U.S. Treasury at the official rate of $35 an ounce, provided there is no evidence of that central bank in question selling gold from its official reserves to private speculators.

The difficulty will be identification of gold in the private market that might have come from central banks; and as yet no "policing" system has been agreed to.

Some policing method would seem vital so as to assure that the $31.4 billion of United States gold stock, recently made available as the result of the removal of the gold cover, does not end up in the hands of speculators.

Members of the banking and business communities of both the United States and Europe, however, view the actions taken this past weekend as no more than a prelude to the need for more meaningful actions on the part of the United States fiscal and monetary authorities to stem the further outflow of gold and thereby improve the balance of payments.

In this connection, one fact already stands out clearly; namely, the United States, although a strong nation, has limited resources; therefore priorities must be established. As example, there must be decision as to whether or not carrying out programs considered essential in this country and other countries are, or are not, more important than carrying out the present progress in Vietnam.

Bob Fox is retiring president.

I do not believe that this economy can handle both; and it is now clear that words alone are no longer respected by our foreign creditors as a substitute for action.
